Reference: Table 4-10-7

In the years 2014-2017 and 2019, emissions of NOx would exceed SCAQMD thresholds. This, as stated is due to concurrent operations of both remediation and grading on separate sites. ? Would these NOx values be under threshold if these operations took place in a sequential effort rather than simultaneous? ? If so, would it not be prudent to maintain the safety and health of surrounding residents by operating under the established thresholds?

?If these operations are to be conducted concurrently because it is more economical to do so, then what price has been put on the health of residents?

Sincerely,

Dave Sutherland
